A United States Warship Should Be Stationed in Henolulu.

British Influences in Opposition to American Interests There.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18 .- In answer to a resolution Secretary Herbert dence between the Navy Department on to Hawall last Summer.

The Admira), previous to his departure, eccived explicit instructions from the Neutrality Strictly Ordered.

This communication called for the utnost neutrality towards the people and lovernment of Hawaii, under instrucions to be received at San Francisco.
Protection of lives and property of imerican citizens was to be extended, aut no support, moral or physical, was to be given to either party engaged in any attempt to restore the Queen or establish a permanent government. His natractions closed with this injunction:

Found Tranquillity at Honolulu. Admiral Walker's first report was dated at Honolulu April 25, and was a formal announcement that he had assumed command. Three days later he described the political situation, saying that the Provisional Government seemed firmly established. The only cause for uneasiness, he wrote, was in the uncertainty of the natives as to the ultimate restoration of the Queen, and the possible disaffection of the Japanese.

The leaders stimulated apprehension by telling the people that they would be punished if the Queen were restored, as they were informed she would be, by the United States. Admiral Walker recommended a formal assurance of non-interference and disapproval of interference by other nations from the United

The Senate's announcement of a defi-nite policy, received by Admiral Walker June 23, he wrote, had strengthened the hands of the Government, and would assist 'n the solution of questions con-cerning the adoption of a constitution and a permanent form of government. His last letter, written from Honolulu Aug. 17, just prior to leaving that sta-tion in compilance with a peremptory order from the Secretary, is the most in-teresting.

ting, ter acknowledging the orders, in al manner, the report continues: Change in British Plans,

As soon as it was known that the Philadelphia was to leave on the 8th, a movement was set on foot among the English residents to retain the Champion, and the Pritrish Minister. Major Wodenburs. Willingly consents to order her to remain in port.

This change of plan and the circumstances under which it was made, put the altuation in a new and somewhat serious light, to thoroughly appreciate which it is necessary to understand the attitude and ambition of Major Wedehouse.

Although holding the position of British Minister, and transacting diplomatic business with the Government de facto, he had been a prenounced and partisan Royalist.

English Ready to Support Liliuokalani.

This, wrote Admiral Walker, with the co-operation evinced by the commanding officer of the Champion, put the matter in a different light. He believed that the British Minister would have seized upon any pretext to use the forces on the Champion to encourage the Royalists and embarras the existing government. "Should such action result in the restoration of the monarchy," he said, "English influence would henceforth control with Liluokalani." By such a scheme, Admiral Walker intimates, Great Britain would gain a site for a cable to the Pacific colonies. He also points out that Pearl Harbor offers fine advantages for a naval and coaling station.

Continuing, the report reads:

Decided to Remain Longer.

Decided to Remain Longer.

Continuing, the report reads.

Decided to Remain Longer.

Although I had full confidence in the Republic's ability to preserve order and regarded the chance of an uprising of the Royalists, even under the favorable curcumstances mentioned above as very remote, I did not feel that even such a remote chance should be taken and I decided to postpone the Philadelphia's departure, at least until the arrival of the Australia's mail on the 11th inst. Before reaching this conclusion I consulted with Before reaching this conclusion I consulted with gown, and I was further confirmed in my rown opinion by the receipt of a petition to keep the Philadelphia at Hosoiolu, signed by several prominent merchants and business men representing large American moneyed interests. This petition is inclosed.

Before the arrival of the Australia Major Wodehouse had been relieved by Capt. A. G. S. Hawes, who came in the steamer Arawa, and who has the still of British Commissioner and Consul-General. The advent of a new man who had no other policy than the policy of his Government and was not involved in local politics, chaused the situation again, and I left Honolulu on the 18th.

British Influence by Trade Jealousy

In another paragraph Admiral Walker

In another paragraph Admiral Walker

In another paragraph Admiral Walker points out that English influence in the Hawalian Islands is always opposed to American interests, principally by reason of trade jealousy. The English and Royalists, he said, were equally elated over the determination to keep the Champion in port after the Philadelphia's departure.

Our Position Well Understood.

The position of the United States, as defined in the Senate resolution, is clearly understood by nations and foreigners in Hawaii, but, he argues, if we are not on hand to perform the duties of our virtual protectorate, no reproach can attach to another power which, in the event of disturbance, takes our place. The British sentiment in the Pacific would easerly embrace such opportunity and make the most of it.

Had the matter been left to his discretion, Admiral Walker says he would have left the Philadelphia at Honolulu. He urges that another ship be sent there at the earliest practicable moment.
